

Why do we do this?

So why do we do this?

The answer is really quite simple…For the pure satisfaction of success. We do this for the kick of a job well done.

Remember the game show? That feeling of satisfaction when you have been sitting in front of the television yelling at the contestant, “Choose the money, choose the money!” and when he does and he wins - and you feel as if you have achieved something?

Business success gives us that feeling – only better because in this case the contestant (you) can actually hear us!

Collectively our core team’s business experience in private and corporate environments adds up to almost 70 years! (Now just before you get scared, the key word here is collectively.)

Our name reflects our passion...

A warming fire on a cold night is how we want to be perceived by our clients.

A place of warmth and acceptance irrespective of the clothes you wear or the car you drive.

The only aim is to ignite your own inner fire and passion and of course, to equip you to make your own fire in future.

Our company was established in 2001.

Initially our core business was financial rehabilitation of over-indebted individuals. In 2002 we changed our trading entity to a company. We now have specific trading divisions for specific client profiles.

NightFire Consultants focuses on small business and business owners only.

To date our clients are mainly generated through referrals. Should you be reading this and you are aware of a business / friend / associate who may need our service, please refer them to our site. We do not believe in “passive income”, therefore you will not be earning commission. Not now nor until you turn 65. We firmly believe in working for your income and helping someone help themselves by pointing them in the right direction cannot be regarded as work but only as goodwill.

We take pride in our association with every business client. Therefore, we don’t complicate our relationship with 86 page contracts. We have a standard client agreement which can be viewed here. This agreement is tailored to the client’s specific needs with regard to the extent of services and price, but the essence of the agreement remains the same.

At NightFire, we are committed to helping you make more money so that you can enjoy the Money and the Box. Complete our Expression of Interest form now and start winning on your own show!
